TRILLIUM HEALTH PARTNERS WINS AWARD FOR ITS COMMITMENT TO ‘GOING GREEN’

(Mississauga, ON) – Trillium Health Partners was recognized for its commitment to sustainability today, as it received the 2014 Booth Centennial Green Award.

The first of its kind in Canada, the Booth Centennial Green Award is awarded to hospitals who have demonstrated a serious commitment to going green and using reusable textiles, as opposed to costly and environmentally-unfriendly disposables. The Vascular Interventional Radiology team at Trillium Health Partners – Credit Valley Hospital was commended for their efforts in this area.

“We are honoured to receive this award in recognition of our efforts to provide the best quality care in an environmentally conscious manner,” said, Jennifer Spasuk, Manager of Diagnostic Imaging. “We strive to provide a new kind of health care for a healthier community and sustainability is an important part of that.”

“We are very excited to recognize Trillium Health Partners. They exemplify model behaviour in helping to reduce their carbon footprint and their impact on landfills and the environment,” said Booth Centennial’s Director of Surgical Solutions, Angela Bruzzese. “By utilizing today’s advanced reusable textiles these elite hospitals are operating with cutting edge, innovative fabrics and products that are superior to their disposable counterparts in protection, comfort and long term cost effective programs.”

The award was presented by Booth Centennial to the Vascular Interventional Radiology team at Credit Valley Hospital at a reception today. Trillium Health Partners was one of five Ontario hospitals recognized by Booth Centennial.
