Trillium Health Partners unveils Plan to 2030: A strategic roadmap to a new kind of health care for a healthier community

People, partnerships, and digital connectivity are driving the future of health at Canada's largest community-based teaching hospital

MISSISSAUGA, ON – October 28, 2025 – Trillium Health Partners today unveiled Plan to 2030, a bold strategic roadmap to deliver a new kind of health care for a healthier community. The plan focuses on improving quality for better access and outcomes, preventing avoidable hospitalizations, and ensuring every person experiences care that reflects who they are, where they are, and what matters most.

“At Trillium Health Partners, we’re building a new kind of health care – defined not by illness, but by the health and well-being of people and communities,” said Karli Farrow, President and CEO, Trillium Health Partners. “We envision a future where care is proactive, personalized, and digitally enabled – connecting hospital services with primary care, home care, long-term care, and community supports to create a more seamless system that follows people through every stage of life.”

Trillium Health Partners serves one of Canada's most diverse and rapidly growing communities, with the demand for health care projected to outpace all other hospitals in Ontario over the next 20 years. Ontarians are also living longer with more complex health needs. By 2040, one in four Ontarians over 30 will require significant hospital care for a serious illness, up from one in eight in 2002.

Through timely access to specialized treatment and diagnostics, prevention, and effective chronic disease management, Trillium Health Partners will improve care, elevate health and strengthen the communities it serves, with more people living longer, healthier lives.

Research, innovation, and education will also be embedded into every aspect of care, ensuring that discovery is immediately translated into real-world impact, improving prevention, treatment and recovery, and contributing to healthier lives for patients and families.

Central to the plan is Trillium HealthWorks — a transformative health care expansion made possible through an unprecedented investment by the Government of Ontario, the historic support of the City of Mississauga, and the generosity of our donor community. The initiative includes the construction of The Peter Gilgan Mississauga Hospital, the Shah Family Hospital for Women and Children, and The Gilgan Family Queensway Health Centre. These hospitals will be part of a seamless, digitally connected system of care, strengthened through partnerships, innovative technology, and AI.

Centred on people and grounded in health equity, the plan reflects the voices of thousands of patients, caregivers, families, partners, community members, and Team THP.

“On behalf of the 17,000 people behind Team THP, I want to extend our deepest gratitude to our community patients, families and partners – this plan belongs to everyone who calls this community home,” said Farrow. “I also want to recognize and thank our team, whose compassion, excellence and courage shape the care we provide every day. Together, we will continue to build momentum, challenge the limits of what’s possible, and create a healthier future for all.”
